HC02750	Item		Large gasoline engine with transportable buzz saw to cut up firewood	graphic material	Photographer, Herington, Trenton Negative by Richard Lumbers, 1966			[ca. 1912]	1 photograph : b&w ; 15.5 x 10.5 cm		From postcard	A gentleman with his horse and buggy are being photographed with a transportable buzz saw and a large gasoline engine, used at the time to cut up firewood. This engine was built by Charles A. Stickney of St. Paul, Minnesota; circa 1907-1913. It has some unique features such as a large cast iron water hopper attached to the horizontal cylinder with a fuel tank on top of the water hopper. The small can on the right front corner of the wagon looks like a fuel can, but is a unique battery box consisting of a round can with a cast iron top cover and carrying handle. Special partitions within the can held a full set of dry cells, requiring only the connection of two wires to the engine itself. The wagon may be home built from parts found around the farm. Notice the front wheels are steel and the back wheels

HC03534	Item		Glen Miller deviation, south end	graphic material	Photographer, F. Henry F. Skill	1993	1993	#####	1 photograph : col. ; 15 x 10.5 cm			In the foreground appears the westerly swing of the present roadway from the centre of the original embankment (see Slide #33). The apparent curvature of the road in the background seems accentuated by a rise in the grade level of the roadway which, possibly stripped of original ballast, now appears to wind randomly along the general course of the embankment as depicted in Slide #37.
HC03535	Item		COR Glen Miller deviation	graphic material	Photographer, F. Henry F. Skill	1993	1993	#####	1 photograph : col. ; 15 x 10 cm			Approaching southerly end of Glen Miller Deviation COR. Looking south at a horizontal level of 66 1/2" above grade level of the recently abandoned COR roadbed (ballast-covered), toward embankment of "Old Railway Bed," now grass-covered, in the right foreground, where it approaches the deviation point to the south of the (forced) road crossing approximately 70 yards from the camera position, in mid-ground. Note the vertical grade separation between the two lines; and the position of the small evergreen bush on the eastern edge of the old embankment north of the 44kv hydro pole, which appears, from a southerly angle, on slides #33 & #35 of this series as indicated by white arrows in these photographs.

HC03536	Item		COR Glen Miller deviation	graphic material	Photographer, F. Henry F. Skill	1993	1993	#####	1 photograph : col. ; 15 x 10 cm			White arrow indicates approximate position of evergreen bush depicted in Slide #31; and northerly aim of camera shows direction of the old roadbed now used as an access road. Recently abandoned COR roadbed is seen to the right. Hydro pole in foreground is that seen in Slide #31; and its location is in apparent alignment with original direction of the old line as it approached the southern deviation point, now obliterated (possibly due to drainage excavation compatible with deviated roadbed). The soil so accumulated appears to have been deposited at the southern end of original embankment; and the roadway currently appearing in the photograph swings west of it in order to cross the (later) deviation with sufficient clearance to avoid fouling the 44kv pole when
HC03537	Item		Shows course of the roadway ... original level maintained by the railway	graphic material	Photographer, F. Henry F. Skill	1993	1993	#####	1 photograph : col. ; 15.5 x 10 cm			This slide and Slide #38 show the course of the roadway described on reverse of Slide #35, the 'hummock' in background of which photographs indicating the possible location of a culvert (not investigated) which possibly discloses the original level maintained by the railway when properly ballasted as a roadbed.
HC03538	Item		Course of the roadway; supplementary view	graphic material	Photographer, F.H.F. Skill	1993	1993	#####	1 photograph : col. ; 10 x 15.5 cm			Supplementary view of the detail depicted in Slide #37 (q.v.)
HC03539	Item		Glen Miller deviation (south)	graphic material	Photographer, F.H.F. Skill	1994	1994	24 Mar. 1994	1 photograph : col. ; 15.5 x 10 cm			Camera at the putative site of junction looking south on COR roadbed toward Lock Road which is 1422 paces from camera, from which position there would appear to have been a grade separation of at least six vertical feet between the existing deviated roadbed (tangent) and the putative original line which swung toward the north-west (curve)--see map section.

HC03540	Item		Glen Miller deviation (south)	graphic material	Photographer, F.H.F. Skill	1994	1994	24 Mar. 1994	1 photograph : col. ; 15.5 x 10 cm			Camera position at Lock Road, looking north along COR roadbed toward south junction located 1422 paces north of camera near the top of the grade in the background where a 44kv hydro line crosses roadbed near the putative junction point and proceeds northwesterly along what is presumed to have been the original railway line. The present grade separation at the junction point appears to be approximately six vertical feet.

Skill	1980	1980	20 Feb. 1980	1 photograph : col. ; 13 x 9 cm			Shows north interchange track at switch with the Grand Junction line, and the divergence of the GJR & B & NH beyond this point. George Albertus Cox anticipated a "wye" across the top of this divergence so that eastbound trains on the Grand Junction trackage could swing northerly to Madoc, Actinolite and Ottawa using the B. & N.H. trackage as part of the "Toronto and Ottawa" Ry. Osler's "Ontario and Quebec" Ry., already chartered, rendered Cox's line redundant; and the Ottawa extension was never built.

HC07899	Item		Graham's Dried Foods Ltd.	graphic material	Photographer, H. Oakman, Peterboro, Ont.				1 photograph : b&w ; 36 x 28 cm			At the bottom right side of the photo is a large pile of wood crates that were used by the farmers to collect tomatoes in. A contract was signed between the farmer and the canning factory so the farmer had a buyer for his crop. The factory started the seedlings and sold them to the farmer along with a number of wood crates. When the crop was ready for picking, the crates full of tomatoes were brought to the factory, graded, weighed and set off on the wood deck seen beside the crates. An equal number of crates that the farmer left were added to his wagon, and the process started again. A large metal vat can be seen on the deck, set on metal drums temporarily for the summer run of tomatoes. The crates were dumped in this vat to wash and clean the tomatoes before the workers peeled them.
HC07900	Item		Graham's Dried Foods Ltd.	graphic material	Photographer, H. HC08078	Item		Photograph album of Mrs Eliza Ridley - contents - numerous photographs			1867	1900	[between 1867 and 1900]	1 photograph album		Originally part of the Hastings County Museum collection (before 1983).	This photograph album was inscribed on the inside cover with the name "Mrs Eliza Ridley". This photograph album was discarded and the 27 photographs, 1 Christmas card, 1 tintype and 1 printed picture were retained in 13 enclosures as appropriate. The album contained a printed Christmas card, 1 tintype, and one printed picture of a child. Most of the images had already been removed from the enclosures and very few have any inscriptions. Some of the photographs were taken in photographers' studios in Cambellford, London (Engl.), Lindsey, Belleville, Toronto, Brantford, Peterboro. Three of the images from Lindsey feature outdoor pastimes, e.g., hunting. One image is inscribed on the reverse, "Miss Francis Proctor from Raleigh Farrar, October 23th 84". One image may be of	Ridley, Eliza	Family and personal life

HC7062 A	Item		Leo Arthur Young Family Collection Album A	graphic material		1918	1925	[between 1918 and 1925]	1 photograph album			This album is made of black leatherette; embossed on the front is "Photos" in cursive; measurements are 25x15x2.5 cm. The album contains about 147 images, most are photographs but there are 6 portraits of men in uniform clipped from a newspaper. Most of the images are of people (some are identified) and not very informative. Some are of Armistice Day, 1918, and depict people outside the Belleville Armouries and activities on Front Street, Belleville, Ontario. Also included are images of downtown Belleville during a flood. There are some class photographs of elementary school pupils. There are images of automobiles (one auto is very expensive-looking) and of a motorcycle and a train. 	Item		Helen McKeown photograph album	graphic material textual record		[1869]	[1906]	[1869-1906]	1 photograph album 1 textual record	Helen McKeown (born ca.1900) was a resident of Belleville, Ontario. She added photographs (now in envelopes) to the rear of the album which was already old when she acquired it. John Spottiswood McKeown was a Belleville pharmacist and the father of Helen McKeown.	Donated by Jennifer Bunting of Kingston, Ontario. Ms. Bunting purchased the album at auction in Napanee and writes that the album had belonged to Helen McKeown.	This album (15x12x5cm) has a cover of green, embossed leather and has one half of a clasp mechanism. There is a small, gold-coloured design on the front cover. The page edges are gilded. The album contains 23 cartes-des-visites, 10 tintypes, and 1 colour lithograph of the Marquis of Lorne. In six paper envelopes are 20 photographs (b&w) and 1.5 postcards. One postcard (creased) is postmarked Aug 22, 1906 and has a green, 1-cent Canadian stamp. The images in the album are portraits; the loose images include portraits, pictures of family outings, a hospital and staff, prisoners, houses, and horses with sleighs and wagons. There are photographs of a little girl in summer and winter attire (possibly Helen McKeown). There is an image of William Craig, a Methodist minister.
